The spectacle of one little, lorn mule attached to a huge ark on the King Sugar Company street-Waikiki line yesterday afternoon caused strangers and barrens the Healant minstrels to gaze in wonderment. The driver, a mere boy, had a few passengers and as the road was partially down grade from one mule did fairly well. Corners, passengers and bell signals were unheeded as the outfit continued toward town, and only at Alakea street did toward town, and only at Alakea street did the ark that young Mr. Rich-come to a stop. The mule could pull

It was only a case of Pain and his foreman sending out sick mules to pull crowded cars, and their breaking down somewhere between switches. Pain sent out a span yesterday which were attached to a car that went to Wakiki. One of the mules was sick and could barely keep his place. On the return to town, instead of the so-called "conbard in private family ductor," who occasionally is seen on supplication to Mrs. A. a crowded tram, calling on the stable of Fort street. Is Allan Herbert are mule were kept going. At Thomas Square the sick mule gave out entirely. The boy who manipulated the reins lashed the poor animal in his efforts to get it to move but without avail. The cars on every switch were stalled in the meantime. At length it occurred to the driver that the sick mule could be taken out of the harness and the weil mule made to do the work of two. The ailing one was tied to a post, and with one mule the ark went on. At Bank, has been lost, Alakea street the car was sidetracked pase return to the bank, and reinforcements awaited. The page advices say that Ma- weary minutes of waiting on switches Company was to have by dozen of passengers did not count and of to cents on April in the episode, as far as Pain was con-

THE BOY GOT BACK AT HIM.

School Commissioner O'Brien, of New York City, has a way of suddenly appearing in a school and asking one of the classes some complicated questions. One day he surprised a school in this way and asked a class of boys; "If three-quarters of a gill cost threequarters of a mill, what would a gal-lon cost?" One daring youngster vainly struggled with the conundrum for some time, and then wrote on his slate, "If three-quarters of a brick hit three-quarters of a Mick, what would happen to O'Brien?"
